Executive Summary

Background

The Federal Government owns personal property assets valued at $2.01 Trillion (extracted from the FY24 Financial Report of the United States Government). This encompasses Government property ranging from office supplies, vehicles, and aircraft, to specialized medical equipment, animals, and scientific devices. Provisions in Title 40, United States Code (USC), other legislation, and Executive Orders (EO), provide the Administrator of the U.S. General Services Administration (GSA) with authorities to promulgate regulations on the acquisition of personal property (primarily via the Federal Acquisition Regulation) and the disposal of this property (via the Federal Management Regulation (FMR)). However, the management of personal property during its in-use phase, or the time that the property is actively being used to support the agency's mission, is left largely to the individual agencies. At the end of its useful life, the holding agency may identify it as excess and it becomes eligible for transfer to other agencies, or once declared surplus, the property can be donated or sold outside of the Federal Government.

Data Collection and Reporting Requirements

In accordance with 40 USC 529 and as promulgated in FMR 102-36, Federal agencies are required to submit data to GSA on excess assets provided to any non-federal entities. Although a portion of this activity occurs through GSA's Federal Acquisition Service (FAS), there are some legal authorities provided directly to all agencies (such as the Computers for Learning program) and legal authorities applicable to specific agencies, both of which allow the transfer of property directly to non-federal recipients. The agency data is collected and maintained in GSA's Office of Government-wide Policy's Personal Property Reporting Tool (PPRT) and is available upon request.

Analysis of FY 2024 Non-Federal Recipients Report Data

The availability of property for disposal is cyclic and the disposal activities may decrease or increase significantly from year to year. For example, agencies may experience large changes in disposal activities from year to year if facilities are opened or closed, there is a change in mission, or there are equipment refreshes within the agencies.

- Government-wide, there was a 5.55% increase in personal property transferred to non-federal entities compared to FY 2023 data.
- Top five Federal agencies disposing personal property to non-federal recipients:
 1. Department of Defense (39.51%)
 2. National Aeronautics and Space Administration (21.09%)
 3. Department of Homeland Security (9.93%)

4. Department of Veterans Affairs (7.51%)
 5. Department of Energy (6.10%)
- Top five disposal methods to non-federal recipients:
 1. Sales - Surplus via Sales Center (34.72%)
 2. Certified R2 Recycler (32.17%)
 3. Surplus Donation Program (10.48%)
 4. Certified Recycler - Other Certification (4.61%)
 5. Law Enf. Support Office (LESO) (4.11%)

Table 2: FY 2024 NFRR Data Summary by Authority

Analysis

To our customer agencies, thank you for the completion of your FY 2024 Non-Federal Recipients Report data. We appreciate your efforts and diligence in providing your data. We will continue to work to improve the PPRT and welcome any suggestions on enhancements and identifying issues that will make the reporting tool more customer friendly.

- Personal property disposals to non-federal recipients increased by 5.55% from FY 2023 OAC totals.
- Like previous years, the sales of surplus via Sales Centers (34.72%) and the donation of surplus property through the Federal Surplus Personal Property Donation Program (10.48%) accounted for a large percentage of property disposed of to non-federal recipients in OAC.
- $34.4M in computer-related assets were transferred to our nation's schools and educational organizations this past year under Executive Order 12999.
- Agency-specific disposal authorities are well-represented, but account for a relatively small percentage of disposal activities. These authorities include DOD's Law Enforcement Support Office (LESO) (4.11%) and DOE's Laboratory Equipment Donation Program (LEDP) (0.27%).
- The single largest disposal activity to non-federal recipients in FY24 was through Sales - Surplus via Sales Center with 34.72% of the total Government-wide disposal in OAC.

FY 2024 NFRR Authorities

Authorities may refer to policies contained in the Federal Management Regulation (FMR) or the United States Code (USC). Please note that some disposal authorities listed below are Government-wide in applicability, while others may only apply to one agency.

Abandon/Destroy (A/D) - In limited situations, agencies have the authority to abandon or destroy property of very low value to avoid additional expenses related to the continued handling and management of the property. Refer to FMR 102-36.305 and following sections.

Atomic Energy Act of 1954 - Authorizes the Department of Energy (DOE) to transfer personal property for specific purposes related to national defense and security.

Certified eStewards Recycler - A recycler certified by the eStewards organization under the applicable standards.

Certified R2 Recycler - A recycler certified by the R2 organization under the applicable standards.

Certified Recycler - Other Certification - A recycler certified to an electronics recycling standard other than the eStewards or R2 programs.

Contractor - An entity under a contractual relationship with the Government, where property is provided to the contractor.

Donation in lieu of Abandonment/Destruction - 40 USC 527 authorizes the abandonment, destruction, or donation to public bodies of property which has no commercial value or for which the estimated cost of continued care and handling would exceed the estimated proceeds from its sale.

Donation of Law Enforcement Canines to Handlers - 40 USC 555 authorizes the donation of canines no longer needed for law enforcement duties to an individual who has experience handling canines in the performance of those official duties.

Economic Development Property Program (ED) - Primarily a program under specific authorities given to the Department of Energy.

EO 12999 (CFL) - Executive Order 12999 allows and encourages agencies to provide educationally-useful computers to certain schools and educational organizations.

Fed. Excess Pers. Prop. (FEPP) (USDA - ARS) - USDA Agricultural Research Service Program authorized by the Agriculture and Food Act of 1981, Pub. L. No. 97-98, § 1439 (1981); 7 U.S.C. § 3318(d) which authorizes USDA to provide ownership of certain equipment and other personal property purchased with funding from USDA contracts, grants, or cooperative agreements to a recipient when the transaction furthers USDA agricultural research or teaching objectives.

Fed. Excess Pers. Prop. (FEPP) (USDA) - USDA program authorized under Section 923 of the Federal Agriculture Improvement and Reform Act (FAIR), Public Law 104-127. The following institutions are eligible to participate in the USDA FEPP program: 1890 Land-Grant Institutions (including Tuskegee University), 1994 Land-Grant Institutions, and Hispanic-Serving Institutions.

Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs)

What is Federal Personal Property?

“Personal property” is defined in FMR 102-36.40 as Federal property not including real property (buildings and land), and not including certain other assets such as records and large vessels. In other words, this term covers property ranging from pencils and paper clips to aircraft, missiles, and NASA Space Program artifacts.

When is the Non-Federal Recipients Report due?

Pursuant to 40 U.S.C. 529, executive agencies must submit to GSA, following the close of each fiscal year, an annual report of personal property furnished to any non-federal recipient during the previous fiscal year. Note that transfers under the Computers for Learning Program (CFL) encouraged by Executive Order (EO) 12999 are reported on the Non-Federal Recipients Report as agencies are required to report to GSA any excess computers and related peripheral equipment that are transferred directly to schools and nonprofit educational institutions.

Where does the data come from?

The data primarily comes from two sources - the agency itself when the transaction is conducted by the agency without GSA facilitation, or from GSA in those situations where GSA facilitates or manages the transfer, such as when GSA transfers property to a State Agency for Surplus Property (SASP) under the Federal Surplus Personal Property Donation Program.

Why is the data being published?

40 U.S.C. 529 requires GSA to publish on a centralized online website a publicly available report. GSA is making this personal property data available via the GSA website at www.gsa.gov for transparency and insight into Federal activities.

Why does GSA collect Non-Federal Recipient data?

GSA is required to collect the information on property provided to non-federal recipients (the “non-fed recipients report” or NFRR) by 40 USC 529.

Where can I get further information on these reports?
